

Application for Consent to Import unregistered veterinary chemical products to be supplied and/or used under veterinary prescription

Prior to submission of this application, applicants must be familiar with the information below.

Applications for Consent to Import must be lodged by a person who is either a resident of Australia or is representing a business that is operating in Australia.

An Import Consent will be issued with a limited validity period that will allow two to three weeks either side of the estimated time of arrival unless otherwise approved under a current APVMA permit. If there are any changes to the information provided, a new application will be required. If it is not possible to estimate an exact date of importation, entering the month of the expected importation will be accepted.

Veterinarians may apply for Consent to Import when they have examined an animal that is under their direct care and have concluded that the use of an imported unregistered veterinary chemical product is indicated over the use of an available APVMA registered product. Veterinarians need to be mindful of state or territory legislation dealing with control of use, particularly when prescribing for use on food producing species. Details of some applications may be forwarded to state or territory authorities for further examination prior to final consideration by the APVMA.
